

History is going to be made in Atlanta this summer.

WILL YOU BE THERE?

Thousands of organizers, educators, activists, mothers, immigrants, students and workers of all races and genders will be gathering at the U.S. Social Forum (USSF). We will be coming together from every corner of the United States— united in our belief that a world free of exploitation, oppression and injustice is possible— to share best practices, exchange strategies and develop solutions to the problems facing our communities.

Why come? Make history • Connect to others • Share your story • Heal • Learn leadership skills • Get inspired • Build new strategies • Link up with a global movement that is changing the world • March, sing, speak your truth • Take action with Indigenous peoples in the Southeast region that experienced historical policies of genocide and removal from their homelands • Take a stand at the birthplace of the Black Freedom Movement • Intersect our issues and struggles • Advance the struggle for justice

What will it be like? Hundreds of workshops • Strategy Sessions • Plenaries • Direct Action • Soccer Tournament • Film Festival • Concerts • Exhibitions • Mass Mobilization

The USSF will be our opportunity to put our voices together to say that we demand a change. We want something better— for ourselves, for the planet and for the people of the world. The U.S. Social Forum is our chance to spark a new movement for economic, racial and gender justice in this country. Let's all get on the road to Atlanta.

June 27-July 1, 2007, Atlanta, GA-Atlanta Civic Center. Registration, workshop, logistics information available at
